Town Council.

A meeting of the town council was held Monday evening, with Mayor Chambers in the chair.

The question of the operating of the skating rink for the ensuing winter was discussed. Councillors Pitt and Reiser were appointed as a committee to have charge of the rink. Mr. Harry Gabel was again appointed caretaker and instructed to proceed with the necessary repairs and prepare for making ice as soon as the weather proved favorable.

The schedule of fees for skating was set as follows:

Gent's Season Ticket $3.00
Ladies' " " $2.00
High School Students $2.00
Children Under 15 yrs. $1.00
Single Admission:
Adults 20c
Children 10c

Free Skating for Children under 15 years: Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Hockey Teams Using Rink: 75% to club and 25% for use of rink.

The matter of the need of clothing and other necessities in several cases was brought to the attention of the council and came in for much discussion. It was decided to give a grant of $100 to the local branch of the Red Cross to be used locally.

Local Red Cross Society Needs Help

Winter is now upon us and we are informed that the stock of clothing, boots and shoes, etc. belonging to the local Red Cross Society, is now depleted.

Numerous cases have already been helped and it is apparent that other calls will be made on the Society as the winter advances.

Donations of cash, clothing, boots, shoes and supplies will be thankfully accepted. If you have anything you can give, bring it in or notify Mr. W. A. Austin, secretary of the local Society.

Some Hunters Return.

Several hunting parties that went out the beginning of the season have returned with varying success.

Jim Cathliffe and Bill McFarquhar returned from hunting north of the James River, but bad weather was against them and they failed to sight any game.

Irving Klein was the first to bring home the bacon, and he came in on Saturday evening with a 4-point buck. He was in the Niche Valley country and reported game as plentiful, having seen about 25 deer.

Bert Fisher, Jack Topley and Frank Heselton came in Monday with a big load. Together with their party they bagged four moose and two deer. They hunted for sheep and goats the first week on the Panther, but met with no success. With the opening of the big game season their luck changed and the big bag resulted.

Complaints have been made that Indians invaded the hunting grounds shortly before the season opened, and as a result hunting has been made more difficult.

Art Exhibition.

An art exhibit under the auspices of the I.O.D.E. will be held in the Leuzler Block on Saturday, Nov. 18.

A large collection of antiques, objects of art, fancywork, etc. has already been arranged for, but the ladies wish to make the exhibition as interesting as possible and are asking anyone who has anything to exhibit to get in touch with the secretary Miss J. H. Lowrie.

Any person holding tickets for the Dominion Bond will be admitted to the exhibition free.

I.O.D.E. Notes.

St. Hilda's Chapter, I.O.D.E. are advertising their 8th Annual Dance to be held in Didsbury Opera House Thursday, Nov. 23. Novelty dances and good prizes.

Miss Betty Hornum had the honor to win the 1933 Provincial W.C.T.U. Essay Contest. This is the second consecutive year that the honoree has been captured by one of Miss Wilson's pupils. 34 Joyce Cummings winning the contest last year.

A well-attended shower and dance was held in the Lone Pine Hall on Friday evening last in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Don Grace (nee Sarah Metzger). The dancing was interspersed with costume dancing by little Joyce McKay, of Calgary, who gave the Highland Fling, Irish Jig and Sailors' Hornpipe most charmingly. Good and poppy music was supplied by the Bellamy Orchestra. Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Grace join in wishing them every happiness.

Brighter and larger pictures will now be seen at the Opera House, due to the fact that one of the latest sound-screens has been installed. This new screen is the latest in picture equipment and is a considerable improvement both from a projection and sound standpoint. Mr. Sharp has gone to great expense to make this improvement and the patrons of Didsbury's movies can now feel assured of seeing pictures equal in both sound and appearance to any in the city.

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the minute space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly as you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN, the name Bayer in the form of a cross is on every tablet of Aspirin.

A Time For Thought

Winter approaches and the year progresses steadily to its close. The major activities of this great western agricultural land are rapidly being completed for another season. The hours of daylight are becoming fewer, the days shorter, and the evenings and hours of darkness longer. As nature thus works out its annual changes, man, too, alters the routine of his life. As his activities on the land become lighter, he rises later in the morning and retires to rest later in the evening. And he employs those evening hours in ways not possible to him when physically tired out from a long day's labor in the fields.

In the late fall and winter months thousands of people in Western Canada devote themselves to reading, to study, to forms of recreation, to community gatherings, which are not possible during the strenuous months of plowing, seeding, harvesting and threshing. The fall and winter becomes the time for self-improvement, for checking up of oneself, for planning for the future.

Possibly, because of the very nature of the times through which the world is now passing, with a multitude of, as yet, unsolved problems; because of difficulties to be overcome which are taxing the resourcefulness and testing the courage of everybody; because of the danger of feeling of despair overcoming hopefulness and faith, because of such a world condition it is probable that people will do even more thinking and study than in times past.

Unquestionably people are thinking, perhaps as they never thought before. Admittedly, there is much loose thinking, reckless thinking, by some. There are others who, perhaps, imagine they are doing some real thinking but who, in reality, are allowing others to think for them and are merely adopting the thinking of others. But many others, probably the vast majority of people, are thinking for themselves, thinking seriously, and earnestly studying, and will continue to do so in even more earnest, serious fashion during the next few months.

Few investments, says one writer, are so sure and profitable as the effort to equip oneself in the four fundamental accomplishments:

1. How to think accurately and comprehensively.
2. How to express thought in talking and writing.
3. How to work skillfully with the hands.
4. How to take one's place among men.

The next four or five months will provide a golden opportunity for many of us to make such investments. As we read a newspaper, magazine or book and obtain entertainment therefrom, the opportunity is likewise ours to think out for ourselves the wisdom or foolishness of the thought expressed or ideas advanced by the writer for the time being engaging our attention. It is an opportunity to test the accuracy and comprehensiveness of our own thinking.

Or, as we listen to some speaker over the radio, to an eminent clergyman, a man well known in public life, an outstanding figure in the financial or industrial world, a great scientist, inventor, traveler, author, or social worker, and as we glean information, and hear definite opinions advanced, we, of course, advance our knowledge and are entertained. But we will have missed a real opportunity for self-advancement if, at the same time, we fail to ponder over and analyze what we hear, and bring our own thinking apparatus into full play, and apply the test of our own serious, concentrated thought, to the views expressed and the ideas advanced.

It is well to be a good listener, a constant reader, but it is better to be a student. Let us absorb from others; in that way information is gained and knowledge advanced. But let us be something more than a sponge which merely absorbs. Let us learn from the words of our teachers, and from the words of the good from the evil, that which is strong from that which is weak; selecting that which is constructive from that which is purely destructive.

There is much to criticize these days, and destructive criticism is about the easiest thing in which any person can indulge. But there is also much to commend and applaud. War with all its horrors and suffering is to be condemned—condemned as the peoples of the world have not yet seen fit to condemn it. But even in the days of war there was nevertheless developed attributes of character of the finest and noblest type. The present economic depression is a world tragedy. Its evils must be mitigated, and a repetition of it prevented as far as it is humanly possible to prevent something of what man alone has not complete control. But out of the depression there is slowly, but surely, arising a greater conception of man's relations, duties and responsibilities toward his fellow man.

There is a better way of life for every individual, for every community and nation, for the world. It will be brought about, and the new era ushered in, not by some tremendous upheaval, not by a rapid overthrow of what now is, and the equally rapid substitution of something else, not by the efforts of any one man, or party, or nation, but by the individual efforts of all combining to do the great common end. The man or woman who does his or her own thinking, deep, serious thinking, and who applies their own God-given powers and energies to the particular task which confronts them, will be the real creators of the new era that is dawning.

Now is the time for every person to fit himself or herself for the great work now at hand and ahead.

London's New Lighting Scheme

Famous Buildings Will Be Flood-lighted On Certain Occasions

Canadian visitors to London this winter will find town a much less gloomy place than they had been led to expect, states Douglas Webster, London Correspondent of the Regina Leader-Post. A lighting scheme has been planned and will be carried out this winter which will rid London of its reputation of a city of dark and gloomy places.

Famous buildings such as the clock tower of the Houses of Parliament, the National Gallery, Westminster Abbey, and St. Paul's Cathedral will be wired for floodlighting and illuminated at certain times.

The London society has the plans in hand. Its intention is to flood-light certain buildings frequently and especially on such days as have national significance. The cost will be borne privately.

The project was first mooted by the Incorporated Association of Architects and Surveyors some three years ago. In London's case it then, today the London Society has the matter well in hand and it is hoped that the first display of floodlighting under the society's auspices will coincide with the British Industries fair which takes place early in 1934.

Although this floodlighting is designed to boost the Industries Fair scheme will not stop there. The Royal Society intends to make it a permanent feature of the London season.

DEPRESSED BY ACUTE ACIDITY

There can surely be no doubt about the effectiveness of a remedy for acidity that can give such permanent relief as this woman's case.

"I suffered for many years from acidity in various forms," she writes. "At last it became so acute that every morning I awoke with a gnawing pain and a great depression of spirits. I tried Kruschen Salts, and the effect was magical. The pain subsided and the depression lifted like a cloud. I have taken the daily dose of Kruschen ever since. There was about five years ago and the Kruschen does not lose its effect." (Miss E.M.H.)

Kruschen is so effective with acidity because it neutralizes acid, takes all the torment out of it, and gently expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination to perfect regular action, Kruschen prevents the harmful acid from ever accumulating again. After that you'll experience no more misery after meals.

Reports were received at Rio de Janeiro, that the British explorer, Colonel H. P. Fawcett, and his son, who have been missing eight years, are alive in the jungle.

A despatch from Oyada, Mato Grosso, to the newspaper "Anhoite" quoted Arao Bezerra, a planter in Parangatinga, as saying that an Indian woman told him two white men were being held prisoners by Culuca Indians in the Xingu district, a 40-day journey from Parangatinga.

Similar reports have not been confirmed.

Japan's Activities In Pacific

Writer Claims Japan Intends To Put U.S. Out Of The Picture

"Japan is now definitely and methodically preparing to put the United States out of the west Pacific picture by force, as she did Russia in 1904," said Tilton Chase, author and lecturer, who passed through Victoria after a trip to Japan and Hawaii.

"When President Roosevelt authorized resumption of building of the United States navy, the Japanese gave up hope of bluffing and persuading the people of the U.S. to withdraw from the Pacific," he said, "Japan now means business."

The author said he was banned from Manchukuo because of his criticism of Japanese activities in that state.

"The Japanese people have been propagandized to the point where they will now not permit any ruling clique to abandon the campaign for domination of China and the Pacific," he asserted. It was high time the people of North America ceased to be deluded by Japanese Government officials who declared war with the U.S. was "unthinkable."

Foresee Maritime Towns Moored In Atlantic

Fore-runner Of Many Others Likely To Rise In North Sea

A vast uncharted island, fore-runner of many others which will give to the world a new race of island dwellers, is said by a Berlin correspondent likely to rise shortly in the North Sea. A time in the near future has been visualized when there will be maritime towns moored in the middle of the Atlantic and complete with luxury hotels and landing grounds for aircraft. Fast airplane services will be begun from the mainland and in between the island communities, aerodromes, with powerful wireless stations, will be built. Then will come the health seekers. Week-enders will discover this new world on their doorsteps. The islands will have their trees, flowers and gardens. The sea will be harnessed to provide electricity, and the wants of the communities will be supplied by cargo carrying aircraft from the mainland.

More Work Under N.R.A.

Expect One Million Or More Have Been Re-Employed

Possibility that the count now being plotted in the United States by the N.R.A. may show re-employment of 1,000,000 or more persons in excess of present estimates is being held out by statisticians to Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

They have calculated that the actual output of goods by direct stimulation will reach tens of thousands of employers who do not report regularly through ordinary channels and may show that between 1,000,000 and 5,000,000 persons have found work since the low mark of last winter. The present accepted figures, based largely upon reports to the labor department by industry and upon trade union estimates, run to approximately 2,500,000.

Pictures Made Of Cloth

Work Of Finnish Artist Resembles New Type Of Oil Painting

Pictures made of pieces of cloth chosen for their colors and stuck to a flat surface are on exhibit in Montreal, the work of a Finnish artist, Elsa Meri-Kallio. There are landscapes, flower pictures and even a few figure subjects, in which scraps of woven stuffs have been used to produce the effect of flesh painting. Silk, muslin and all kinds of textiles are used and a great deal of patience and skill must have been required in working them into pictures to gain some striking effects which are quite surprisingly like many of the newest types of oil painting.

British Delegate At Geneva Stands Firm On Principle Of Protection To All Minorities

With a smashing indictment of the new German conception of racial homogeneity Great Britain outspokenly opposed, at Geneva, the German argument that her treatment of the Jews does not come under the provisions of the rights of minorities.

W. G. A. Ormsby-Gore, commissioner of works and British delegate in the political commission of the league, was applauded by the members as he waggled his finger at Dr. Friedrich von Keller, the German delegate, and declared:

"Wherever Jews have been in the course of the centuries, they have been the most loyal and helpful members of the nations. There is among the Jews a sense of historical continuity throughout their dispersal, and they do form a racial minority which deserves the same fair treatment as is extended to other loyal citizens of the nation to which they are attached."

The German argument is the Jews in Germany are neither a racial nor linguistic minority and therefore the minorities' treaties are not applicable. Dr. Von Keller answered the British attack by insisting the league had no competence in the matter and it was a unique problem demanding special treatment. The Germans also have attacked the whole previous conception of nationalities by the new Hitler idea that a nation is an ethnic whole regardless of whether its members are within or without its frontiers.

The British delegate bluntly rejected this idea and did not mince his words. "If we accept it," he said, "I hesitate to think of the responsibility of any government for all those in the United States who claim descent from the original Pilgrims in the Mayflower." There are about 3,000,000.

Great Britain herself consisted of three main races, the English, the Scottish and the Welsh, and these could be subdivided into many more, he said.

Playing what he called the German thesis that a state has the right to concern itself with the citizens of its race living in other countries he grew increasingly emphatic as he launched into one of the warmest defenses of the parliamentary system delivered in an international gathering since the advent of Fascism and Hitlerism.

"Great Britain believes firmly in a parliamentary system in which the minorities can carry their voice to the government and all sides must be heard before laws can be enacted. Likewise Great Britain believes in the freedom of the press."

"We have always set self-government even above good government," he also declared. "Great Britain will never abandon parliamentarism. The quality of freedom is the thing that holds Great Britain. It is the free association of free peoples bound together by real guarantees that protects all minorities all over the world."

"One of the cardinal principles of the British Empire is that no person shall be deprived of the right to hold any post under the crown because of color, race or creed."

Meanwhile a German delegate told the economic commission of the assembly that some Jews had left Germany because of "their bad consciences."

The commission was discussing a Dutch resolution seeking creation of a special organization to find homes for Jewish refugees, a proposal supported by the French, Spanish, Dutch, and Czechoslovakian delegates.

The German said he opposed any discussion of the Jewish question from a political standpoint. President Count de Wiert, of Belgium, began selection of a subcommittee to study the idea, remarking "I suppose that in view of the German attitude Germany prefers not to be represented."

"You are right," the German replied.

Sodium Sulphate Plant

Refining Plant To Be Erected North Of Maple Creek

Immediate erection of a sodium sulphate refining plant to cost $100,000 at Inglebright Lake, 40 miles north of Maple Creek, will be undertaken by the Metallica and Non-Metallica, Limited, of Toronto, it is announced.

The first unit will be in operation within the next two months and will employ approximately 30 men. Ultimately this will be increased by 50 to 60.

The initial construction work which entails the expenditure of $150,000 will be for the construction of a single unit utilizing an air expansion drying system. Ultimately the firm expects to enlarge their plant facilities to in excess of $1,000,000.

According to U. T. Bartlam, of Toronto, the sulphate deposits at Inglebright Lake are the largest property in the world, having 98.6 per cent, pure sodium.

Flour Milling Industry

Holds Place Of Third Leading Industry In Dominion

The flour milling industry in Canada is now the third leading industry with pulp and paper holding first place followed by slaughtering and meat packing.

Canadian flour mills now have a capacity far beyond the requirements of the domestic markets. The home market uses only 41,750,000 bushels of wheat for its domestic flour requirements while the requirements of the Canadian flour mills averaged around 67,500,000 bushels for the past few years.

The development of Canadian flour mills is largely accredited to the abundance of readily available water-power. Few of the big milling plants are now dependent upon steam since water-driven electrical equipment has largely supplanted that means of operation.

Four milling is the oldest of all Canadian manufacturing industries and dates back to 1865 when the first permanent Canadian settlement was made by the French at Port Royal, now Annapolis, Nova Scotia.

The substantial export business in flour from Canada had its inception during the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe.

Dairying In Palestine

Higher Milk Yields Obtained In The Holy Land

In Palestine, renowned in ancient times as a country of herdsmen and shepherds, the native types of cattle are being superseded by pedigree stock, from which steadily improving milk yields are being obtained, says the Dominion daily and cold storage news letter. Ten years ago 600 cows of good strain gave 7,721 lbs. of milk per cow. Today there are 6,000 cows of improved breed with an average yield of 6,810 pounds per cow, while the total production from all sources including native cows, amounts to 27,240,000 lbs. Some settlements, notably Kiriat Anavim, showed an average milk yield of as much as 5,800 litres (13,166 lbs.) per cow.

Japanese Are Patriotic

Rich And Poor Contribute Toward Military Fund

Military funds in Japan have been greatly expanded by patriotic contributions since the Manchurian trouble began and a large share of the money has come from school children and factory workers. Rich and poor alike have been encouraged to add to local funds for the purchase of guns, tanks, airplanes and other weapons for the army. Hardly a week goes by without a ceremonial presentation of an airplane by the management and workers of some large firm or of a machine gun mortar by the teaching staff and children of some school or a college. Recently every officer and man in the navy gave a month's pay toward national defence.

"Smile that way again," she blushed and dimpled. "Just as I thought you look like a chipmunk."

The Prosperity Of Dominion Depends Upon Prosperity Of Farmers Of Western Canada

Explodes Popular Belief

Sir Leonard Hill States Draughts Do Not Hurt You

Many popular beliefs regarding fresh air and health were exploded by Sir Leonard Hill in his presidential address to the Sanitary Inspectors' Association Conference at Clacton-on-Sea, England.

"Most people still think," said Sir Leonard, referring to ventilation "that they are tired and made uncomfortable by want of oxygen and excess of carbonic acid in crowded rooms and that the smell of such a room betokens the presence of volatile poison."

"The discomfort in crowded rooms arises not from chemical vitiation of the air but from interference with the loss of body heat and the congestion of the nose and nasal sinuses reflexly produced in sensitive people by infra-red rays, these acting on the skin."

"Relief is obtained by fanning the air and so cooling the skin and this without making any change in the chemical purity of the air."

"The Black Hole of Calcutta measuring eighteen square feet, had two small windows. In this, in 1756, were confined 146 people. Nine hours later twenty-three individuals staggered out, the rest were dead."

"We know now that all these people died not from suffocation through want of oxygen, but from heat stroke."

"We have read recently of some forty-three greyhounds travelling in a furniture van and twenty-four dying, and of three valuable leopards dying in their usual travelling boxes when exposed to the sun in hot weather."

"In place of prosecuting such cases the R.S.P.C.A. might be much better employed in teaching the public to know about the danger of heat stroke. The death of these animals was due to over-heating and not to suffocation, as was supposed at the inquiry."

Sir Leonard said we now know that the chill felt before the heat of fever, was not the cause of the fever but the shivering stage which ushered in infection.

And yet to this day children were mistakenly kept indoors in air polluted with microbes for fear of catching cold outside.

Founder Of Silk Industry

Preparations were made at Canton, China, for the commemoration of Lu Chi, the famous imperial concubine of Huang Ti emperor of China. Traditionally accepted as the founder of the silk industry, history records that she discovered over 4,600 years ago the art of rearing cocoons. Under the auspices of the Bureau for the Improvement of Sericulture, the celebration was held on the seventh day of the Seventh Moon, which fell this year on August 27. China Weekly Review.

The development of the west seemed based "on the assumption that for all time Canada would produce and would be able to sell enormous quantities of wheat every year." This policy had resulted in large carry-overs during the past few years, with the prospect of a substantial amount on hand at the end of the present crop year, notwithstanding a relatively light crop, says E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"It is a delatable question, therefore," he continued, "whether we will not have to revise our plans for the west and not place such complete reliance on our ability to export our wheat, even though it is the finest wheat in the world and produced under present conditions at costs which are moderate."

"One thing stands out above all others when western conditions are being observed and that is that prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the farmer, and this means fair prices for wheat, and also that upon this prosperity depends the prosperity of Canada. I have never known a period in our history when we were not prosperous if agricultural conditions and prices were satisfactory."

"It is usual for those who visit western Canada to return with a greater appreciation than ever of the optimism and courage of the people of that part of the country and my recent trip has only confirmed what others have so often commended," continued the railway president. "Notwithstanding drought, frost and several damage in some districts, done by grasshoppers, the farmers of Saskatchewan and Alberta still retain their buoyant view and the vacating of lands for those more favorably situated, has not reached very large proportions. Direct relief in some portions of the country will again, unfortunately, be necessary during the coming winter, but this, if efficiently administered, will be cheerfully given by the taxpayers of the Dominion."

A Common Occurrence

Suicides From New York's Tall Buildings Are Frequent

High buildings exert a fatal fascination on people whose minds are turned to the idea of self-destruction. Suicides from tall structures are so common in New York as to be commonplace. In one year 334 people were killed by jumping off high buildings. It was in May, 1929, that for the first time in record a man committed suicide by jumping from the Statue of Liberty, the colossal figure in New York Harbor. The statue was a gift from France to the United States, and was unveiled in 1886. The height from the foundation of the pedestal to the torch is 305 feet. The Eiffel Tower, since it was built 40 years ago, has been the scene of 111 suicides. The tower of the Westminster Cathedral has brought on attacks of "height madness," and a few years ago a mother with two girls aged 7 and 2 were found dead after a fall of 250 feet.

"Poppy Day."

Poignant reminder of those spacious days of glory and grieving, "Poppy Day" once more recurs to prompt the citizens of this country in the duties they have inherited from the past generation. To Canadian youth in this year of grace the deep-red petals of the Poppy may not carry the same significance they bore to the youth of fifteen years ago. The symbolism of sacrifice with which the Poppy has become charged is something to which the present generation succeeds only through the wistful memories of the aging men who fought their Country's battles, who suffered privations; endured long agonies and finally triumphed around surroundings that were carpeted with poppies.

To wear this humble emblem on "Poppy Day" is to proclaim that amid all the jangling confusion through which this country is striving valiantly to penetrate, the heart and mind are nevertheless attuned to a sense of homage due those men whose peace inspired 600,000 Canadians to offer themselves for service between 1914 and 1918; of that number more than 60,000 found graves in France and Belgium. And it is over those graves that the Poppy blows its perennial bloom.

The numbered dead were not strangers. They were Canadians, filled even as the youth of today is filled, with the joy of living. So also were the 170,000 men who in 1933 bear upon their bodies the marks and scars of war—the disabled ex-servicemen who suffered disablement on behalf of Canada.

To manifest that proud recognition of their place in this Country; to mark that tribute which is their due, "Poppy Day" has been set aside in order that all may join in recalling the Great Sorrow.

The blood-red emblems distributed throughout Canada by the Canadian Legion's vast volunteer organization are the product of disabled veterans—men striving to maintain themselves in the "Veteran" Shops administered by the Dominion Govt. To purchase a Poppy is a small thing—for every citizen to do so is a big thing.

Poppies will be on sale in Didsbury tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday under the auspices of the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

"LET US ALL WEAR A POPPY ON POPPY DAY!"

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy father, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to be the Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her "something she should know about Peter."

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIII.

"Well," began Gus, exhaling the smoke of his cigarette, noisily, and turning toward Camilla. "You sure do get to know a guy when you live with him. And I'm tellin' you now that Peter is not good enough for a sweet little kid like you. He has a dozen skirts after him all the time, like the moths around that light over there. Why? Because he kids 'em along and makes each one think she's the berries for him. D'you know how he's payin' his way through school? On the money he gets from rich dames like you! Has he lunched you for a payment yet?"

"You are despicable," Camilla told him in a deadly calm voice. "I don't believe a word you are saying and I refuse to listen any longer!"

"Oh, yeah?" his laugh was ugly. "I'll bet you are beautiful to look at when you're mad like that. I told you I'm crazy about you and I meant it. If Peter is good enough for you, so am I—" and before Camilla was aware of what was happening, his arms were holding her like a vise and his mouth was seeking hers while she struggled violently to free herself.

From behind them, a doubled hand struck out swiftly against the side of Gus' head and sent him sprawling upon the ground. At the same time, another arm grasped Camilla's shoulders and prevented her falling from the force of the blow that separated them.

"Did he hurt you, dear?" Peter was breathing hard, with anger and exertion.

"No, but I hope you have hurt him." She was trembling, too, with anger. "Not because of me but for what he was saying about you."

"I heard enough," Peter said curtly, "which doesn't matter." But I'm sorry I am responsible for introducing you to such a bum."

He walked around the bench and stood above Gus, who rolled over then and put his hand tentatively to his bruised jaw. Peter reassured himself that his victim was only stunned, stood up and adjusted his own tie and clothes, and took Camilla's arm.

"Shall we go back to the party and forget this unfortunate affair? Glad I came out here to look for you. I missed you and had already lost one dance with you, so I suspected something was wrong." He was trying to dismiss the incident and sound casual, but his voice still shook uncertainly. "I know you wouldn't voluntarily cut the dances you had promised."

"But, Peter, he said those terrible things about you!" She was still trembling with her own resentment, and wondered how Peter could dismiss the thing so calmly.

"But you don't believe them, darling?" he asked quietly.

"Of course not!"

"Then, that's all that matters. You know, the world has so many people in it that there just have to be some like that—ungrateful and jealous and malicious. But time is too precious to waste even thinking about them. From now on, we'll just forget Gus. People like that just hang themselves with their own rope. He can shift for himself, as he did before I took pity on him. At least, that's one load off my mind!"

Peter Was Breathing Hard From Anger And Exertion.

"Do you mean," Camilla was incredulous, "that you have been keeping Gus—?"

"Most of the time, he shrugged indifferently.

"And he could say that!" she exclaimed with dismay. "Well, this world surprises me a little more every day—the people, I mean."

"Sure, the world is fine. It's the people—regular hokey-podgy. Interesting, though," he added thoughtfully. "Every good or bad surprise I have over human nature makes me a little bit wiser and more able to cope with it in general. As Tommyson said, I am a part of all that I have met."

"Oh, Peter, you're so fine yourself," she told him with loving admiration, "that you can find some good in everything."

He patted her arm, as they walked slowly back to the auditorium. "That's because you think so, honey," he told her with characteristic modesty.

The last balloon had escaped ceiling-walkers, many of them were deflated and had dropped to the floor which was strewn with confetti, serpentine, dangled limpy in mid-air, and the orchestra had crowned goodnight.

Again, they were walking through the park, arm in arm. It was that witching hour when the young moon rides high and gloriously, when the air is sweetly caressing and the sounds of the night whisper and echo mysteriously like conspirators of romance. The moonlight stretched a silver path across the lagoon, down which tiny ripples rode gleefully with the breeze. Somewhere, a pair of birds had just finished the building of their nest and twittered sleepily, and an adventurous frog gave a frightened croak and leaped into the water with a thudding splash.

Camilla chuckled softly. "Poor thing! Perhaps he was on his way to see his girl friend and we frightened him so he never will have the courage to try again."

"Too late, anyway, to start out adventuring," Peter laughed. "He should be taking her home, as I am—and wish I didn't have to," he added softly, drawing her closer with the arm that held her.

talk as if I were going to be a burden to you!"

"Never that," he protested. "But, you know—"

"I know nothing about letting you take care of me, Peter, this is the day of women's freedom, you know, freedom from the bareness of idleness that makes them barrens to men. You don't have to take care of me, just because you love me."

"And that is just why I do want to take care of you. That is the test of a man's love, whether or not he wants to cherish and protect a woman. It's all right for women to be free and independent—free to escape from the guardianship of men if they wish. But when a woman falls in love, she goes right back to the beginning of things again—service and submission and dependence. She can't escape it. And the man who loves her in the right way, wants to take care of her, to endow her with his worldly goods. It is part of his 'vanity.'"

"Of course, but all of that is in our future, dear, and for people whose situation is different from ours, I'm talking about us, now. Why should you grieve and worry over not being able to provide for me, when you should be giving the best of yourself to your work toward success?"

"But what else can I do?" Now that I've found you, I can't forget you—not for a minute. Oh, Camilla, I need you so—"

He stopped abruptly to kiss her. "How can we go on like this—for years?" his voice yearned.

"We can't," she whispered. "And we'll not."

"What do you mean?" he demanded.

Little Helps For This Week

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men"—Galatians 6:10.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love, Through constant watching wise, To meet the glad with joyful smiles, And to wipe the weeping eyes, And a heart at leisure with itself, To soothe and sympathize.

—A. L. Waring.

Surely none are so full of cares or so poor in gifts that to make amends, waiting patiently and trustfully on God for His daily commands. He will not give direct ministry for him, increasing according to their strength and desire. There is so much to be set right in the world, there are so many to be led and helped and comforted, that we must continually come in contact with such in our daily life. Let us only take care that by the glance being turned inward or strained onward we do not miss our time of service, and pass by those to whom we might have been sent on an errand straight from God.—E. Charles. Look up and not down, look forward and not back, look out and not in, and lend a hand.—Edward E. Hale.

One Of Queerest Trades

Professional Writer Of Speeches Has Office In London's Famous Strand

Entitled to a high place on the membership list of the club of queer trades is surely the professional writer of speeches who occupies a sky-lighted office in London's famous Strand. His enterprise and originality have at all events brought him success, for since his idea was first put into practice a few years ago, he has written hundreds of speeches on the most diverse subjects. Titled and professional folks of all sorts apply to him. For the most part, however, his clients' requirements are of a more ordinary nature, and consist of demands for after-dinner speeches, and addresses for bazaars, presentations and similar functions. Then the writing of political speeches at times also forms a considerable part of the humble speech-writer's activities; and on many occasions he has been called upon to write both "for" and "against" the same party and subject.
